Demented Italian Kills Countryman And Tries Suicide

·rtoli Aveni Shoots And Kills Samuel ·adile, His Cousin, And Later Shoots Himself Twice

AVENI STANDS A CHANCE TO RECOVER

The peace, quiet and good order of the East End was terribly startled and shocked shortly after noon today by a murder and attempted suicide which started on Seventh street and ended in the alley between Tenth and Eleventh street.

The victims were Italians and the double shooting was due entirely t the vagaries of a crazy man so far as we can learn.

The gun wielder was Bartoli Aveni, aged about 37 years, while the victim was his counsin Samuel Cadile, aged about 40. Each man leaves a widow and family in the old country.

Aveni has been living in this section for the past four years and was regarded as a quiet, inoffensive man who minded his own business. He worked in the Harbison-Walker brick works, but some time ago was forced to quit on account of ill health.

About one month ago Burgess Callahan was in Glen Richey and was told that a Clearfield Italian, evidently demented, was in that town and was a subject for the authorities to look after. The Burgess looked him up and found the man suffering from the hallucination that someone was after him. He had cut his mustache off in an effort to disguise himself and thus escape his enemies. He also wanted to enlist in the regular army. Mr. Callahan brought Aveni to town with him on his truck and had him turned over to the county outhorities and he was sent to the county home.

He appeared to regain his health and left the home yesterday.

He was about the East End Sunday and this morning went to the home of Tony Castaglona, on Seventh street and waited until his cousin Sam Cadile, who boarded there, came home from his work at the brick yard at noon. When Cadile got into the house he evidently found Aveni in his bed room and an altercation ensued, but the details of what occurred there will never be known as there were no eye witnesses to the tragedy.

The room shows signs of a scuffle and there was a single drop of blood on the floor and another in the hall at the top of the stairs leading down to the kitchen which indicates the shooting was done in the bedroom. No shots were heard but a neighbor woman saw Cadile passing the upstairs hall window evidently in pursuit of his slayer a minute before Aveni ran out of the alley and down Seventh street to the alley between Dorey and Daisy streets.

Cadile's dead body, with a bullet hole in the left breast about three inches above the heart and his nose and face badly crushed was discovered on the kitchen floor, the feet resting in the door of the stairway, the man evidently having fallen head first down the stairs.

Aveni ran down the alley to the intersecting alley between Tenth and Eleventh streets where he stopped and after engaging in a brief conversation with Mrs. Tom Avendo, who was sitting on her porch, he reloaded his gun and putting the muzzle under his chin pulled the trigger. The ball passed up through his mouth and lodged back of the nose. He then fired a second shot into his face.

Drs. Lever Stewart, Piper and Wilson were quickly summoned, the former looking after the murderer while Dr. Piper made an examination of Cadile.

Officer Eale Constable Reiley and a couple of the boys of Co. E were promptly on the ground and took charge of the matter and made the proper investigation for future reference in case a court trial will be necessary.

Aveni was removed to the hospital where it was said he has a chance to get over his injuries unless complications ensue.

County Coroner Dr. J. I. Pollum, of DuBois, was notified and came to Clearfield this afternoon to investigate the killing.

HATFIELD'S BROTHERS AMONG ELECTION BANDITS

(By United Press)

Huntingdon, West Va., April 23.—Bandits armed with revolvers and with faces hidden behind black masks swept down on the polling place in Rockhouse precinct, Mingo county, shortly before the ballots of the 1914 congressional election were counted, held up the entire election staff at the point of guns and stole the entire franchise of the precinct. Poll books, ballot boxes and election paraphenalia were carted away.

Two brothers of a former governor of this state will go to trial tomorrow in federal court here charged with complicity in that raid. They are Greenway and Valentine Hatfield, brothers of fromer governor H. G. Hatfield. Three others—Noah White, George R. Maynard and Jack Brewster—who experienced a mistrial at the September trial, will face the same charges tomorrow.

One lone Bull Moose ballot, found on a wild hillside, miles from the precinct, is the only one of the 800 ballots ever found.

Howard Sutherland, Republican senator from West Virginia, and C. E. Cooper, Republican, were the successful candidates in the 1914 election. The alleged fraud favored Democrats, it is claimed, but did not materially affect the Republican count.

WHO'S WHO IN UNIFORMS

(By United Press)

Washington, April 23.—Not one civilian out of a hundred can tell an officer's rank by his insignia. In these days, when an officer is required to wear his uniform at all times it's easy to tell the rank if you remember the simple allegory.

Generals have stars on their shoulder straps; colonels an eagle; Lieutenant colonels have a maple leaf; majors an oak leaf; captains two bars; first lieutenants one bar and second leutenants no bar at all. The allegory:

The second lieutenant enters the service at the bottom with the future before, him hence has no designating mark. The lieutenant has climbed one bar of the ladder hence one stripe on his shoulder strap. When the captaincy has been reached he has climbed another bar and wears two stripes. Over the two bars comes the oak leaf and above it the maple. Soaring majestically above the trees sails the eage and in the blue vault of the heavens above all others are the stars —the leaves the major and lieutenant colonel, the eagle the colonel and the stars the general.

CULLINS—SPACKMAN

On Saturday afternoon at four o'clock a very pretty wedding was solemnized in the Presbyterian manse by Dr. E. C. Reeve, pastor the Presbyterian church. Zack Cullins, of Newark, Ohio, and Miss Ruth R. Spackman, of Nichols street, Clearfield were married with the ring ceremony of the church. They were attended by the bride's mother and two friends. The bride was beautifully gowned and carried white carnations. The happy couple will go to Newark, Ohio, where Mr. Cullins has a lucrative position, and a home is prepared for them. A host of friends who have known Mrs. Cullins ever since childhood, wish for both the bride and groom. the happiest married life.

Get Into Line While You Have The Time

If You Want Military Training You Can Get it Tomorrow Night

The Clearfield Military company are getting in first class shape for the big patriotic parade on May 1st and with that end in view will drill Tuesday Wednesday, Thursday and Friday nights of this week.

Captain Prosser wants to have the boys stepping off like real soldiers and would like to have all who expect to join or parade on that occasion to come out tomorrow night and participate in the nightly drill and not wait until the last minute to get in line.

The Independent Military company will be the first to respond to Uncle Sam's call for troops as soon as the real call is made and all our young men who figure on enlisting should enroll their names and go out with the Clearfield unit. It won't be long until you will be wanted.

Martin Brantner and his sister, Miss Venia, of Karthaus, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. James Duckett on West Front street.

HARVARD TO FURNISH 2000 MEN

Cambridge, Mass., April 23.—The enlisting of 1000 additional students at Harvard for military service was begun today, following the end of the spring vacation and the opening of the new college term. Already 1000 cadets have been enrolled as candidate for commission in the reserve officers' corps. On May 7 a total of 2000 students will abandon their books and enter intensive military training to the exclusion of all else.

"German" Groundhog Discovered, Maybe

W. W. Waple Shoots at Man Attempting to Dig Under Bridge Abutment

The watchman at the B. R. & P. bridge over the Susquehanna river at the entrance to the New York Central yards below town, assert positively that an attempt was made to blow up the east abutment during the early hours of Sunday morning. Two men guard the bridge each night. They are George Shillem and Wesley Waple. Saturday night the former was at the West end of the bridge, while the latter was on this side.

Somewhere between 2 and 3 o'clock Sunday morning Waple heard suspicious sounds in the vicinity of his end of the bridge and a quiet investigation, he says, resulted in his discovering a man under the bridge close up to the abutment. When he flashed his light down in the direction of the marander, the man took to his heels, running down the river. Waple fired two shots at him, but he was protected by the overhanging bank and managed to make good his escape.

On hearing the shooting Shillem ran across the bridge to assist his fellow watchman, but he arrived too late to get a crack at the alleged trouble maker.

The two immediately made an investigation and found where an attempt had been made to dig under the stonework. The attempt had been made at two points, fair sized holes being made in both places. An iron bar, taken from a freight car, with which the digging was done, was lying on the ground near the excavations, where it had evidently been dropped by the digger when Waple's eagle eye detected him and the cannonading began.

FORMER RESIDENT DEAD

John Durkee son of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Durkee, former residents of Clearfield died at the home of his sister Mrs. McCloskey, in the Third Ward, at an early hour this morning.

The deceased had been living at Olean. N. Y., for the past four or five years, where he was employed as a printer. He had been a sufferer from heart trouble since infancy and his death was due to leakage of the heart.

He was about 22 years of age and was raised in Clearfield, and learned the printing trade in the Public Spirit office. He was a fine young man and his untimely death is mourned by a large circle of friends.

He is survived by his parents, two sisters Mrs. Roy McCloskey of Clearfield, and Mrs. John Logan, of Olean. He also leaves a widow and two children.

W. I. Swoope addressed a patriotic gathering at Kylertown last Saturday afternoon and in the evening at Bellefonte.

More High School Boys Respond To The Call

Ten Clearfielders go to DuBois This Morning Enroute to Army

That Clearfield and Clearfield county is ready to do their bit for Uncle Sam was again attested this morning when some fourteen or fifteen husky young lads boarded the 11:44 train for DuBois where they expect to enlist at the regular army recruiting office in that city.

Clearfield High School was again represented by four recruits. Those who left today were:

Carl Austin.
John Flegal.
Ernest Barger.
Lex McCloskey.
Keith Wicks.
Malcolm Cox.
Hobart Leipold.
Myles Thomas.
Archie Thomas.
Albert Wilson.

Besides the above mentioned Clearfield boys, the following also went along:—

Raymond Goss. of Sanborn.
Henry Merrill, of Faunce.
Harry Dunlap, of Faunce.
Hazel Bloom, of Faunce.

Impressively Beautiful Flag Presentations

Patriotic Service at Presbyterian Church Sunday Morning

One of the most impressive services ever held in Clearfield was the patriotic services held at the Presbyterian church yesterday morning dedicating two magnificent silk flags, one for the church and one for the Sabbath school as an inspiration to Patriotism.

While the congregation stood and sang "Onward Christian Soldiers" the flags were presented by Major Meyers assisted by Lieutenant Noble and two privates and Misses Marian Dole and Betty Betts, Donald Betts and Jack Norris and with the singing of the 'Star Spangled Banner" the flags were unfurled by the children and were placed in the holders in the choir loft. Then Dr. Reeve preached an eloquent sermon on the "Lord our Banner"

The choir sang that beautiful anthem "Who is the King of Glory" and Prof. Van Osten sang the wonderful Kipling's "Recessional" in his usual gratifying manner.

Lieutenant Sylvus who is organist and choir master at the famous Scots Presbyterian church of Philadelphia presided at the organ and enraptured the congregation with his excellent playing.

The hearts of all were touched and inspired to patriotism and each one was glad that he was there.

NEW SHIP LAUNCHED

(By United Press)

New York(April 23—With a grim lack of ceremony suggestive of war times the super-dreadnought New Mexico, the world's first electric driven battleship, was launched at the Brooklyn navy yards today. A small crowd consisting chiefly of the employees cheered as the giant ship took to the water. Miss Margaret C. DeBach, daughter of the governor of the State of New Mexico, broke the bottle on the warships bows as it slid softly down the ways.

MILITARY RAILROADS IN ITALY

Rome, Italy, April 23—Allied railroad commissions today are preparing to redraw Europe's railroad map. They are already planning the destruction of the allied dependence on the German lines on the "war after the war."

For example, a proposed railroad connects Bordeaux with Odessa, avoiding Middle Europe and passing through Turin and the Italian-to-be Triest. Other lines, perfecting the development of allied territory, are also in prospect.

French and English railroad officials are now in Italy, studying the situation with allied officials. The commissioners are making a careful our of investigation throughout the allied countries, it is said and work on the contemplated lines will be rushed to completion, as soon as the war ends.

ENGLAND'S PATRON SAINT

London, April 23—Today the Union Jack may be expected to flutter even more proudly on the battle front: while Tommy Atkins will inject additional "pep" into his fierce charges against the teutons—for this is St George's day, the feast day of England's patron saint. Throughout the British dominions and in every other nook and corner of the world where sons of England have found a foothold the day will be enthusiastically observed.

Little is known of the life of St. George, except that he was martyred in Nicomedia in April, 303. He became extremely popular with the English crusaders, and was adopted as the tutelary saint of England during the reign of Edward III. It is interesting to note that St. George is also the patron saint of Russia and of Portugal, two of England's allies in the present war.

HEAD-ON COLLISION

Some excitement was created at the "diamond" corner Saturday evening when two automobiles, or two Fords, came together with a crash. One machine, which was coming down Second street at a lively gait, was driven by Glenn Fargo, of the West Side, while the other was being driven by a Mr. Swatsworth, of Curwensville. The latter machine was pretty badly damaged, the steering gear knocked out of whack and jammed up generally.

BRAZIL SPEEDS FOOD PRODUCTION

American packers have taken an interest in increasing the Brazilian output in this line and will aid in staging the exhibition.

Charles Decker and two sons, of Daisy street, left this morning for a trip to New York City.

Washington, April 23—What the Allies want from the United States more than anything else is food. This vitalfactor emphasizes the trappings of diplomatic courtesy at the reception tendered Foreign Secretary Arthur J. Balfour and the British Commission by President Wilson and other American officials.

While the day was given over to surface courtesies and diplomatic greetings the foreign experts of both America and England went into consideration of the vital questions—shipping, munitions, finance and military and naval affairs needed by the Allies since the United States has come in.

There is no "immediate concern regarding the sending of troops to Europe," it was officially stated.

Balfour confered with President Wilson and President Cunliffe of the Bank of England conferred with Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo, naval experts of both nations met with Secretary Daniels, military experts with Secretary Baker, shipping advisors with their corp of [illegible] experts, but they all [illegible] clear that the presence of the British representatives in this country was a plea for food for the allies. "I wish to make it plain," said their spokesman, that we are not here to tell you what you must do. The Allies greatest problem and the one which will best help our cause is food which includes that of shipping. Please remember that Britain's food problem is not the French food problem, nor the Italian or Russian food problem, it is all one great question. At a recent allied conference the allies agreed to pool their food supplies.

No direct discussion regarding the food situation will take place until the French commission arrives The French commission will not come here out of mere courtesy but will take an active part in the conferences it was stated Also the official spokesman said, "allow me to make clear the status of Balfour. Balfour's word in every respect is absolute The experts are here merely to answer questions directly to them through Balfour. Every decision will be reached between Secretary Balfour and President Wilson. It is my belief that Balfour will not broach any question of international political policy. He is prepared to answer any questions however. He will speak for all the allies. The allies part in this situation is not to hamper or coerce the United States into any international relations. All we want to do is help."

The President received Balfour in the Blue Room of the White House where hundreds of great men in years past have conferred on subjects of great moment. The meeting between President Wilson and Secretary Balfour was marked with the greatest simplicity except for the splendor of the uniforms of the President's aids. the whole affair was informal. Secretary Baker and his staff greeted Lieut. Bridges, tall and handsome. He was dressed in his plain field service uniform and the American officers were loaded down with gold ornaments.

20 SUBS TAKEN

Washington. April 23.—A member of the British war commission said that 20 German submarines and their crews had been captured by the British on April 10, the day before the party sailed. "They weren't captured, either," added the Englishman, "they were looking for a destryoed base when we picked them up. They were on the verge of starvation and offered no resistance. England has captured a lot more than you people in America have any idea of."

CENSORING THE PRESS.

The Senate at the present time is greatly exercised over the measure to provide for a censorship over the newspapers of the country. It is probable that several of the members are even more disturbed than the circumstances would justify. Quite a few of them have been sharply criticized during the past weeks for their public acts and may harbor a feeling of "get even." The greater majority, however, seem anxious that perhaps a too strict censorship might be imposed and a measure passed that would encroach upon free speech. This is quite true. Fair and honest criticism should be welcomed at any time, and is, by most congressmen. Senator Thomas, of Colorado, summed the matter rightly when he said that "I would put no restrictions on the American press, that is not absolutely necessary to the salvation of the Republic. Once the rights of the press are invaded, the rights of the people will be. I would rather see no law at all. I would rather take my chances under existing laws, than to see a statute like this passed by the Congress."

The present laws are sufficient to prevent the press of the United States from publishing anything that would be detrimental to the welfare of the greater interests of the country, and they would be sufficient to hold any overzealous editor in check. Editors will respect any request made upon them by the government. This was amply illustrated on Saturday morning. The state department announced to the big news gathering agencies of the country Friday night that Sir Arthur Balfour and the English commissioners had arrived in the United States, but it was requested that no announcement of it be made until later. Not a paper carried this news on Saturday morning, and none published it until it was officially released on Saturday evening. The Progress along with others was in possession of this information.

About all that is necessary in the present instance is for Congress to issue a resolution warning editors against malicious and unwise statements, and put each editor and reporter on his honor to be careful in their public utterances with assurances of ample punishment in case they were indiscreet. Every newspaper man would scan the news and its value to the enemy or the United States carefully considered. He would err on the side of safety by cutting out the copy rather than take the chance, if any doubt existed. This mode of procedure with the large news gathering agencies would prevent the careless editor from going wrong, as he would not get the news for publication should he prove untrustworthy.

The press is one with the administration and anxious to play its part with honor and discretion.

CHINA BOY SAVVE GOD?—CONSIDERABLY

(By United Press)

Denver, Colo., April 23.—The life of a deputy city attorney in Denver is a hard, hard road to travel anyway. But the crowning ignominy has been heaped on Con. K O'Bryne—who is Irish as his name implies.

O'Bryne suspected that a Chinese witness being sworn in police court did not realize of the oath he was taking.

Sell Lung, known as the "mayor" of Denver's Chinatown, was the witness. But O'Bryne didn't know this.

"China boy savve God?" he queried as Lung took the oath.

"Mr. Attorney, if you mean do I understand the entity of our Creator, I will simply reply that on next Sunday night I shall address a body of my fellow countrymen upon the subject of Christ, and shall be pleased if you will attend," replied the Chinaman in perfect English.

Letters to the Editor

WHAT IS THE MATTER WITH CLEARFIELD

Last year the town experienced a building boom. New buildings everywhere within the borough limits. In the East End. On the West Side. North Clearfield and in the Central part. More new buildings erected than in any one year for perhaps fifteen years. I do not know the number but am informed by a builder who keeps in touch with the growth of the town that there were about one hundred good, substantial brick homes built during the year 1916.

With all this improvement, extending to and taking in the Textile plant buildings why should the assessed valuation for borough tax purposes decline? Would it not be reasonable to expect a great increase? Also an increase in collections of taxes for borough purposes. The reverse is correct as the following figures will show: Duplicate for 1915, $3,021,429; duplicate for 1916, $3,017,245; and for 1917, $3,005,086. Crtainly this is a strange condition.

Who are at fault? The assessors or the county commissioners in allowing exonerations. From one property in the heart of the city an allowance of $20,000 from the assessor's valuation was permitted and on another $1,500. On still another an allowance of $1,000 was given. All located in localities where property is increasing in value.

The town is spreading, much building on the outskirts, causing heavy expenditures on the part of the borough treasury because these property owners want drainage, sewerage and sanitary conditions which are already provided for the more central parts. The Borough Council is a football; an object for every taxpayer to train a good swift kick on. This body has a limited amount of money to expend but many citizens who promote public enterprizes come before Council asking for appropriations to help out. Some of worth and others of a faddish nature as though borough resources unlimited. Many are refused because the borough money has to be used for actual necessities. This borough has a large increased debt. Nothing further along that line will be permitted unless something of a most extraordinary nature occurs. Taxes have become burdensome. An increase in millage, except for taking care of the last increase in debt, would not be tolerated without a howl of rage. And yet with our borough expanding, modern improvements wanted in the expanding section, what will occur with numbers of buildings being erected which should cause a greater valuation for taxable purposes? An increase of funds in the borough treasury but the total assessed valuation showing a reduction. It means the millage will have to be increased or else a better system of assessing value intrduced and fewer reductions from the assessor's assessments.

If it becomes necessary to increase the millage in order to increase the borough funds, don't blame the council but put the blame where it belongs. See that the assessors are capable and good judges of the worth of real estate and that they assess at fair and just values both as to the owner and the borough. Then say to the county commissioners—keep hands off! Taxpayers—think of this problem. Notwithstanding the great amount of building last season and increase of value of real estate within the borough the assessed valuation for taxable purposes has decreased.

MOTHER ONCE WAS AFRAID TO GO TO BED

Spasmodic Croup Often Kept Mrs. Shepard Awake All Night.

No one but a mother knows the terrors of croup. In the hope that other mothers will find the same relief she experienced, Mrs. Benj. Shepard, 27 Spruce St., Danville, Pa., writes—

"I have used your Vick's VapoRub Salve, and would not be without it in my house. I have tried it for spasmodic croup and it acted like a charm. My little girl breathed easier in about ten minutes after I rubbed her throat and chest with VapoRub, and she went to sleep and never woke until morning. Other times I used to have to sit up all night with her, afraid to go to bed. So I will gladly recommend it to any mothers for croup."

You just apply Vick's VapoRub Salve over throat and chest, covering with a warm flannel cloth. The body heat releases antiseptic vapors that are inhaled with each breath, loosening the phlegm. A real "Bodyguard in the home" against all cold troubles. Three sizes, 25c, and up. At all druggists.

WHY INDIVIDUALISM IS AS DEAD AS A SMELT

By George W. Perkins.

"Individualism" is as dead as a smelt. That is my contention.

In this country we have been living in an age of the utmost freedom to the individual. It has been the individualistic period.

In the early days, when instantaneous intercommunication did not exist, when education was meagre and science undeveloped, what the individual did was of comparatively small consequence, for his deeds did not reach very far and did not affect many people.

With intercommunication drawing the world together in one centralized community, the act of the individual can affect a large number of persons; therefore, that form of freedom which is simply another expression for license to do as one pleases can no longer exist.

Society is finding it necessary to take away much of what has hitherto been called "freedom of the individual." In my judgment this process is only in its infancy.

Until recent years little broad thinking was given to this problem and differences were settled on the basis of "might makes right." All this is rapidly changing and we are entering a period of new industrial relationships.

In my judgment we are just now entering a period of copartnership, where the tool user will be part tool owner and where capital and labor will share more equitably in the profits of the business in which they are jointly engaged.

This advance is inevitable because of our educational system, which teaches the workingman to think for himself.

It is inevitable because strikes and lockouts can never be settled satisfactorily or permanently by merely raising a man's wages.

No more increase in wages can ever satisfactorily solve this problem. It can be solved only on the basis of profit sharing.

By profit sharing I do not mean bonus giving.

Profit sharing can be done satisfactorily only when the business concern makes public its transactions, so that the laborer and the stockholder can know as much about the business as does the manager himself.

In the adjustment of difficulties between capital and labor I am confident that open books will accomplish much more than open shops.

About the only goal we have had has been the almighty dollar. The first question asked when a man dies is, "How much was he worth?" with ... how much he did for his community or his country.

But what has it all amounted to?

On the whole, the individualistic age has not been a success, either for the individual or the community in which he has lived, or the nation.

We are, beyond question, entering on a period where the welfare of the community takes precedence over the interests of the individual and where the liberty of the individual will be more and more circumscribed for the benefit of the community as a whole.

Our only decoration—the almighty dollar—is receding into the background.

The man of exceptional ability, of more than ordinary talent, will hereafter look for his rewards, for his honors, not in one direction but in two:—First and foremost in some public work accomplished and, secondarily, in wealth acquired.

One reason why I am strongly for universal military training is that it develops in the youth a sense of all around responsibility to his country, not only in time of war but in time of peace.

In recent years we have been hearing a great deal about government ownership of our railroads.

Government ownership of railroads may be as desirable in this country as it is in Germany, but we must first have public servants who will at least come somewhere near the standard of Germany's public servants in efficiency and honesty.

Centralization is the order of the day. The telegraph, the telephone, the automobile and the airship are the causes. They have wiped out not only old precedents and customs, but State and national lines as well.

A man living in Boston who wishes to talk to a man living in San Francisco simply rings a bell, puts a little instrument to his ear and proceeds to talk. There is hardly a miracle in the Bible more wonderful than this.

The doctrine of "State rights" is being rapidly demolished.

The State, viewed as an individual with the right to do as it pleases within itself, without regard for other States, can no longer be tolerated.

We must therefore take on a new nationalism.

The mighty changes taking place in Europe tell us with unmistakable voice that the reconstruction period is at hand. The man of the future must realize it. He must not look back to the setting but forward to the rising sun.

SUBSTITUTING BRAINS FOR DOLLARS

Ethel's veranda presented a most inviting appearance as I jumped out of my motor and ran up the stone steps. The day was unusually warm for such early spring and she had brought her reed furniture from the cellar, and Baby, her mother-in-law and she were enjoying the good fresh air and invigorating sunshine.

Baby was playing with some blocks, mother was half asleep in a lounging chair, and Ethel as usual was very busy. This time her fingers were plying a needle through a soft grey chiffon.

"Welcome, my dear!" she called as she saw me for the first time. "I was just hoping you would drop in. Somehow I had a feeling you would come, for know the sunshine's appeal to you is too strong to resist unless the studios claim your presence. Come, pull your chair close to mine so we won't disturb mother, and we'll chat."

"Keep right on with your work, busy bee," I said, "What it is you're making now?"

In answer Ethel drew a fashion book from the basket on the wing of her chair and displayed to my view a delightful frock.

"I'm changing it a bit, though," she declared. "Last week when I explored a little in the shops, I saw one of the most attractive summer dresses imaginable. But the price!! For the rest of the afternoon I tried to conceive some way of purchasing it, but my brain couldn't discover how to make my dollars prove sufficient. At last I decided to get the latest fashion book and see if there was anything similar within its pages. The style was too difficult to copy without a pattern. Well, there was nothing just like it. But by buying three different patterns, I have really duplicated the frock. Don't you think it will be effective with a collar in a mixture of dull rose and the grey itself?"

Indeed I did. Even in imagination I could just see how very lovely it was sure to be.

Every time I visit Ethel she shows me how brains may do the work of dollars. Of course many would not be able to do things so aptly, but neither could Ethel do it at first. Gradually her work has improved and now she it able to make things just as effectively as they do in the shops.

And in these days of impossible prices one finds the substitution of brains for dolars most advisable.

JITNEY DRIVER TRIED IN BOMB PLOT

(By United Press)

San Francisco, April 23.—Israel Weinberg, third of the group of alleged conspirators held responsible for the bomb explosion which killed eleven people in San Francisco preparedness parade last year, went on trial befor Superior Judge Dunne today.

Weinberg, a jitney driver, is claimed by the state to have driven Thomas J. Mooney, Warren K. Billings and other conspirators, to the corner of Steuart and Market streets, where the bomb was placed. Warren K. Billings and Thomas J. Mooney have been tried and convicted of murder, Billings under a life sentence and Mooney sentenced to death.

Weinberg, it appears, will claim he was not on Market street the afternoon of the explosion and had no connection with the plot, whatsoever.

ARRESTS FOR HIGH LIVING

Rome, April 23.—La Teurs and Aragno's, Romes largest cafes, have been fined for selling ices and ice creams on "sweetless" days. Approximately $4,000 worth of the "forbidden fruit" was sequestered by the municipal authorities and distributed among the city's soldier wounded and war orphans.

STOMACH UPSET?

Get at the Real Cause—Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That's what thousands of stomach sufferers are doing now. Instead of taking tonics, or trying to patch up a poor digestion, they are attacking the real cause of the ailment—clogged liver and disordered bowels.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets arouse the liver in a soothing, healing way. When the liver and bowels are performing their natural functions, away goes indigestion and stomach troubles.

If you have a bad taste in your mouth, tongue coated, appetite poor, lazy, don't-care feeling, no ambition or energy, troubled with undigested foods, you should take Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You will know them by their olive color. They do the work without griping, cramps or pain.

Take one or two at bedtime for quick relief, so you can eat what you like. At 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

LITTLE LILLIAN ROMAINE FISHER CAN TALK AGAIN

This attractive little lady is the two year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. M. Fisher, 238 North St., Harrisburg, Pa. Last winter she had an attack of measles, together with a very severe cold. Just at that time Druggist S. J. Wilhelm presented Mr. Fisher with a jar of the Southern "outside" treatment—Vick's VapoRub Salve, which was just then being introduced in Harrisburg, and requested that he give this preparation a thorough trial. Mr. Fisher writes—

"I must say that our baby had such a cold on her chest and in her throat that she could hardly talk, and we could not get her to take anything internally. After we used Vick's VapoRub Salve on her breast and throat at night before going to bed she was entirely relieved."

No family should be without this preparation. It is externally applied, and so can be used freely—it is absorbed through and penetrates the skin, and, in addition, is inhaled as a vapor. It has a hundred uses for the many minor ailments for which every mother is the doctor. Three sizes, 25c, 50c or $1.00.

AMERICA' GREATEST LAWYER DEAD AT 76

JOHN G. JOHNSON

John G. Johnson of Philadelphia, little known to the public but recognized for more than a quarter of a century by lawyers as the greatest among them, is dead at seventy-six years of age. He was offered and declined what some men have striven a lifetime to obtain—an appointment to the Supreme Court of the United States. Both Presidents Garfield and Cleveland offered to nominate him. President McKinley asked him to become attorney general of the United States but he refused that place too. He had a great knowledge of art as well as law, and was considered by many persons to be really a great expert on paintings.

Pep

"You've Got the Goods, Atlantic"

"Today, the specific gravity test is practically worthless as a check on the suitability of a gasoline, for example, for a given motor equipment. * * * It seems most probable that the definition of gasoline will have to be based on the percentage that distils over between specified temperatures, when the distillation is carried out under specified conditions. * * *

"The gasoline must not vaporize too freely for two reasons: One, that it would not be safe, and secondly, its loss in storage by evaporation would be too great. Hence, the specification may have to contain limitations of the percentage distilling over below a certain temperature, coupled perhaps with a proviso that certain percentages shall distil over below other fixed temperatures, in order that requisite amounts of low-boiling constituents shall be present to insure easy starting of an engine.

"Likewise the specification must contain a proviso that all must distil over below a certain maximum temperature, in order to exclude from the gasoline the heavier petroleum distillates, such as kerosene."

Official Press-Statement by U. S. Govt. Bureau of Standards.

We've been preaching and practicing the same thing for years. The boiling-point of Atlantic Gasoline is always uniform. It meets Uncle Sam's ideas perfectly.

A DROP of Atlantic Gasoline—what majesty, what superb virility! Torn to shreds in the cylinder-head and lashed into a stream of might in instant flight from crank-shaft to rear wheels!

Pep. Power. Tremendous power—steady, unfaltering. Truly a super-gasoline that makes any motor a better motor, that makes any motorist a happier motorist.

Atlantic Gas is so downright spunky. Up-hills are turned into down-grades. Level stretches become as the free, unobstructed air to the whirring aeroplane. Increased mileage and decreased upkeep are a matter of course—and fact.

Whatever you drive—Ford or Fiat, Cole or Cadillac, Roamer or Rolls-Royce, Atlantic Gasoline will give it new impetus, new vigor. For, Atlantic gas will and does Put Pep in Your Motor.

LYTLE BROS.

MARKET ST. CLEARFIELD, PA.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

TOM THUMB WENT A JOURNEY

They Walked Off With Him.

[Adapted from Grimm's Fairy Tales]

WHEN daddy had taken the big armchair the children cuddled down beside him for this story. "Once a little boy, no bigger than my thumb, drove his father's horse to the woods. He made the trip in the horse's ear, you know.

"'Take me down, father!' he shouted, when he got there.

"Now, two strangers had followed along with Tom. They were much surprised, you may believe, when they saw a man step out of the woods, take hold of the horse's bridle with one hand and with the other lift a tiny boy out of the horse's ear.

"The father put Tom down on a straw, and there he sat as comfortable and merry as you please after his trip.

"All this time the two strangers were looking on and hardly knew what to think for their wonder. At last one whispered to the other: 'That little urchin would make our fortune if we took him about from town to town and used him as a show. We must buy him!'

"So up to the woodman they went and asked him what he would take for his tiny son. 'He would be better off with us than with you,' they told the father.

"Said Tom's father: 'We love our tiny boy very dearly and no amount of money would tempt us to sell him to you. My own flesh and blood is dearer to me than all the gold and silver in the world.'

"But all the time Tom Thumb was listening to the bargain. So now he crept up his father's coat till he stood on his father's shoulders and, whispering in his ear, said: 'Take the money, father, and let them have me. I will soon be back to you!'

"So then the woodman told the strangers he would sell his son for a large amount of gold, which they paid.

"'Where would you like to sit?' one asked Tom, taking possession of him.

"'Oh, put me on the rim of your hat,' answered Tom Thumb. 'That will make a nice gallery for me. I can promenade about there and see the country as you walk along.'

"So the stranger put Tom on his hat. And after he had bade his father goodby they walked off with him. On they journeyed till night began to fall.

"'Let me down, I'm tired,' said the little man to the stranger who carried him. The man took off his hat and put Tom down on a clod of earth in a plowed field by the side of the road," daddy finished.

ESSAYS ON HUMANE EDUCATION

It has been with great pleasure that I have addressed the sixth grade schools of Clearfield on the subject of Humane Education within the past months I found the principles and teachers all most willing to cooperate and the pupils eager to take up the line of work suggested.

After announcing the offer of a prize by the Woman's Club for the best essay written on the subject of "the Needs of Dumb Animals," every pupil volunteered to write on the subject. More than two thousand pages of literature for these pupils has been donated by the state "Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals."

The time of awarding the prize will be announced later.

Alice Joyce and Harry Morey in "THE COURAGE OF SILENCE"

Special at the Globe Theatre Tomorrow

Bitter indeed were the dregs of her empty marriage into which she was forced for political reasons. But her fiery spirit rebelled and she allowed herself to love an American.

He, weakly flattering his vanity, accepts her regards until she discovers his own family ties.

What was she to do? She had abandoned her brutal husband and now refused to go with the American. She had one alternative. She became a nurse.

He dared not return to face his family. He took a trip abroad to forget. But when his child fell ill, Mercedes coming as a nurse, makes the greatest sacrifice a woman may.

Secretly loving him, she is instrumenal in having him return home, rescues his child and brings a realization to him of the greatest of all gifts. Then her heart an empty shell, courageously she returns silent to the convent retreat.

CHICAGO MEAT KING IS IN FAVOR OF MEATLESS DAYS

J. OGDEN ARMOUR

So serious does J. Ogden Armour, the great packer, of Chicago, think the food situation in the United States since we have entered the war, that he had this to say on the subject: "As a measure of conservation, for example, I should favor the institution, of meatless days, one or two of them a week, such as they now have in Europe. This is a strange doctrine for a meat packer to preach, but I believe that either by law or voluntarily people will be obliged to stop eating so much meat during the summer months, esperially if they expect to have a sufficient supply next fall and winter."

SECOND SPANELL TRIAL

Coleman Texas, April 23 The second trial of Harry J Spannell, former hotel keeper in the town of Alpine, who is alleged to have shot and killed his wife and Lieutenant Col Malcolm C Butler U. S. A last July, is scheduled to begin here this week, the case having been brought to Coleman on change of venue. The tragedy occurred while Spanell and his alleged victims were riding in an automobile near the town of Alpine, where Lieut Col Butler was stationed at the time of the Mexican border trouble. Jealousy is said to have furnished the motive for the shooting. At San Angelo last February Spanell was tried for the murder of his wife and acquitted. He is now to be tried under an indictment charging him with the murder of Lieut Col Butler.

Demented Italian Kills Countryman And Tries Suicide

[Ba]rtoli Aveni Shoots And Kills Samuel Cadile, His Cousin, And Later Shoots Himself Twice

AVENI STANDS A CHANCE TO RECOVER

The peace, quiet and good order of the East End was terribly startled and shocked shortly after noon today by a murder and attempted suicide which started on Seventh street and ended in the alley between Tenth and Eleventh street.

The victims were Italians and the double shooting was due entirely to the vagaries of a crazy man so far as we can learn.

The gun wielder was Bartoli Aveni, aged about 37 years, while the victim was his counsin Samuel Cadile, aged about 40. Each man leaves a widow and family in the old country.

Aveni has been living in this section for the past four years and was regarded as a quiet, inoffensive man who minded his own business. He worked in the Harbison-Walker brick works, but some time ago was forced to quit on account of ill health.

About one month ago Burgess Callahan was in Glen Richey and was told that a Clearfield Italian, evidently demented, was in that town and was a subject for the authorities to look after. The Burgess looked him up and found the man suffering from the hallucination that someone was after him. He had cut his mustache off in an effort to disguise himself and thus escape his enemies. He also wanted to enlist in the regular army. Mr. Callahan brought Aveni to town with him on his truck and had him turned over to the county outhorities and he was sent to the county home.

He appeared to regain his health and left the home yesterday.

He was about the East End Sunday and this morning went to the home of Tony Castaglona, on Seventh street and waited until his cousin Sam Cadile, who boarded there, came home from his work at the brick yard at noon. When Cadile got into the house he evidently found Aveni in his bed room and an altercation ensued, but the details of what occurred there will never be known as there were no eye witnesses to the tragedy.

The room shows signs of a scuffle and there was a single drop of blood on the floor and another in the hall at the top of the stairs leading down to the kitchen which indicates the shooting was done in the bedroom. No shots were heard but a neighbor woman saw Cadile passing the upstairs hall window evidently in pursuit of his slayer a minute before Aveni ran out of the alley and down Seventh street to the alley between Dorey and Daisy streets.

Cadile's dead body, with a bullet hole in the left breast about three inches above the heart and his nose and face badly crushed was discovered on the kitchen floor, the feet resting in the door of the stairway, the man evidently having fallen head first down the stairs.

Aveni ran down the alley to the intersecting alley between Tenth and Eleventh streets where he stopped and after engaging in a brief conversation with Mrs. Tom Avendo, who was sitting on her porch, he reloaded his gun and putting the muzzle under his chin pulled the trigger. The ball passed up through his mouth and lodged back of the nose. He then fired a second shot into his face.

Drs. Lever Stewart, Piper and Wilson were quickly summoned, the former looking after the murderer while Dr. Piper made an examination of Cadile.

Officer Ea[illegible] Constable Reiley and a couple of the boys of Co. E were promptly on the ground and took charge of the matter and made the proper investigation for future reference in case a court trial will be necessary.

Aveni was removed to the hospital where it was said he has a chance to get over his injuries unless complications ensue.

County Coroner Dr. J. I. Pollum, of DuBois, was notified and came to Clearfield this afternoon to investigate the killing.

HATFIELD'S BROTHERS AMONG ELECTION BANDITS

(By United Press)

Huntingdon, West Va., April 23.—Bandits armed with revolvers and with faces hidden behind black masks swept down on the polling place in Rockhouse precinct, Mingo county, shortly before the ballots of the 1914 congressional election were counted, held up the entire election staff at the point of guns and stole the entire franchise of the precinct. Poll books, ballot boxes and election paraphenalia were carted away.

Two brothers of a former governor of this state will go to trial tomorrow in federal court here charged with complicity in that raid. They are Greenway and Valentine Hatfield, brothers of fromer governor H. G. Hatfield. Three others—Noah White, George R. Maynard and Jack Brewster—who experienced a mistrial at the September trial, will face the same charges tomorrow.

One lone Bull Moose ballot, found on a wild hillside, miles from the precinct, is the only one of the 800 ballots ever found.

Howard Sutherland, Republican senator from West Virginia, and C. E. Cooper, Republican, were the successful candidates in the 1914 election. The alleged fraud favored Democrats, it is claimed, but did not materially affect the Republican count.

WHO'S WHO IN UNIFORMS

(By United Press)

Washington, April 23.—Not one civilian out of a hundred can tell an officer's rank by his insignia. In these days, when an officer is required to wear his uniform at all times it's easy to tell the rank if you remember the simple allegory.

Generals have stars on their shoulder straps; colonels an eagle; Lieutenant colonels have a maple leaf; majors an oak leaf; captains two bars; first lieutenants one bar and second leutenants no bar at all. The allegory:

The second lieutenant enters the service at the bottom with the future before, him hence has no designating mark. The lieutenant has climbed one bar of the ladder hence one stripe on his shoulder strap. When the captaincy has been reached he has climbed another bar and wears two stripes. Over the two bars comes the oak leaf and above it the maple. Soaring majestically above the trees sails the eage and in the blue vault of the heavens above all others are the stars—the leaves the major and lieutenant colonel, the eagle the colonel and the stars the general.

CULLINS—SPACKMAN

On Saturday afternoon at four o'clock a very pretty wedding was solemnized in the Presbyterian manse by Dr. E. C. Reeve, pastor the Presbyterian church. Zack Cullins, of Newark, Ohio, and Miss Ruth R. Spackman, of Nichols street, Clearfield were married with the ring ceremony of the church. They were attended by the bride's mother and two friends. The bride was beautifully gowned and carried white carnations. The happy couple will go to Newark, Ohio, where Mr. Cullins has a lucrative position, and a home is prepared for them. A host of friends who have known Mrs. Cullins ever since childhood, wish for both the bride and groom, the happiest married life.

Get Into Line While You Have The Time

If You Want Military Training You Can Get it Tomorrow Night

The Clearfield Military company are getting in first class shape for the big patriotic parade on May 1st and with that end in view will drill Tuesday Wednesday, Thursday and Friday nights of this week.

Captain Prosser wants to have the boys stepping off like real soldiers and would like to have all who expect to join or parade on that occasion to come out tomorrow night and participate in the nightly drill and not wait until the last minute to get in line.

The Independent Military company will be the first to respond to Uncle Sam's call for troops as soon as the real call is made and all our young men who figure on enlisting should enroll their names and go out with the Clearfield unit. It won't be long until you will be wanted.

Martin Brantner and his sister, Miss Venia, of Karthaus, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. James Duckett on West Front street.

"German" Groundhog Discovered, Maybe

W. W. Waple Shoots at Man Attempting to Dig Under Bridge Abutment

The watchman at the B. R. & P. bridge over the Susquehanna river at the entrance to the New York Central yards below town, assert positively that an attempt was made to blow up the east abutment during the early hours of Sunday morning. Two men guard the bridge each night. They are George Shillem and Wesley Waple. Saturday night the former was at the West end of the bridge, while the latter was on this side.

Somewhere between 2 and 3 o'clock Sunday morning Waple heard suspicious sounds in the vicinity of his end of the bridge and a quiet investigation, he says, resulted in his discovering a man under the bridge close up to the abutment. When he flashed his light down in the direction of the marauder, the man took to his heels, running down the river. Waple fired two shots at him, but he was protected by the overhanging bank and managed to make good his escape.

On hearing the shooting Shillem ran across the bridge to assist his fellow watchman, but he arrived too late to get a crack at the alleged trouble maker.

The two immediately made an investigation and found where an attempt had been made to dig under the stonework. The attempt had been made at two points, fair sized holes being made in both places. An iron bar, taken from a freight car, with which the digging was done, was lying on the ground near the excavations, where it had evidently been dropped by the digger when Waple's eagle eye detected him and the cannonading began.

FORMER RESIDENT DEAD

John Durkee son of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Durkee, former residents of Clearfield died at the home of his sister Mrs. McCloskey, in the Third Ward, at an early hour this morning.

The deceased had been living at Olean, N. Y., for the past four or five years, where he was employed as a printer. He had been a sufferer from heart trouble since infancy and his death was due to leakage of the heart.

He was about 22 years of age and was raised in Clearfield, and learned the printing trade in the Public Spirit office. He was a fine young man and his untimely death is mourned by a large circle of friends.

He is survived by his parents, two sisters Mrs. Roy McCloskey of Clearfield, and Mrs. John Logan, of Olean. He also leaves a widow and two children.

W. I. Swoope addressed a patriotic gathering at Kylertown last Saturday afternoon and in the evening at Bellefonte.

More High School Boys Respond To The Call

Ten Clearfielders go to DuBois This Morning Enroute to Army

That Clearfield and Clearfield county is ready to do their bit for Uncle Sam was again attested this morning when some fourteen or fifteen husky young lads boarded the 11:44 train for DuBois where they expect to enlist at the regular army recruiting office in that city.

Clearfield High School was again represented by four recruits. Those who left today were:

Carl Austin.
John Flegal.
Ernest Barger.
Lex McCloskey.
Keith Wicks.
Malcolm Cox.
Hobart Leipold.
Myles Thomas.
Archie Thomas.
Albert Wilson.

Besides the above mentioned Clearfield boys, the following also went along:—

Raymond Goss, of Sanborn.
Henry Merrill, of Faunce.
Harry Dunlap, of Faunce.
Hazel Bloom, of Faunce.

Impressively Beautiful Flag Presentations

Patriotic Service at Presbyterian Church Sunday Morning

One of the most impressive services ever held in Clearfeld was the patriotic services held at the Presbyterian church yesterday morning dedicating two magnificent silk flags, one for the church and one for the Sabbath school as an inspiration to Patriotism.

While the congregation stood and sang "Onward Christian Soldiers" the flags were presented by Major Meyers assisted by Lieutenant Noble and two privates and Misses Marian Dole and Betty Betts, Donald Betts and Jack Norris and with the singing of the 'Star Spangled Banner" the flags were unfurled by the children and were placed in the holders in the choir loft. Then Dr. Reeve preached an eloquent sermon on the "Lord our Banner"

The choir sang that beautiful anthem "Who is the King of Glory" and Prof. Van Osten sang the wonderful Kipling's "Recessional" in his usual gratifying manner.

Lieutenant Sylvus who is organist and choir master at the famous Scots Presbyterian church of Philadelphia presided at the organ and enraptured the congregation with his excellent playing.

The hearts of al. were touched and inspired to patriotism and each one was glad that he was there.

NEW SHIP LAUNCHED

(By United Press)

New York(April 23—With a grim lack of ceremony suggestive of war times the super-dreadnought New Mexico, the world's first electric driven battleship, was launched at the Brooklyn navy yards today. A small crowd consisting chiefly of the employees cheered as the giant ship took to the water. Miss Margaret C. DeBach, daughter of the governor of the State of New Mexico, broke the bottle on the warships bows as it slid softly down the ways.

MILITARY RAILROADS IN ITALY

Rome, Italy, April 23—Allied railroad commissions today are preparing to redraw Europe's railroad map. They are already planning the destruction of the allied dependence on the German lines on the "war after the war."

For example, a proposed railroad connects Bordeaux with Odessa, avoiding Middle Europe and passing through Turin and the Italian-to-be Triest. Other lines, perfecting the development of allied territory, are also in prospect.

French and English railroad officials are now in Italy, studying the situation with allied officials. The commissioners are making a careful our of investigation throughout the allied countries, it is said and work on the contemplated lines will be rushed to completion, as soon as the war ends.

ENGLAND'S PATRON SAINT

London, April 23—Today the Union Jack may be expected to flutter even more proudly on the battle front; while Tommy Atkins will inject additional "pep" into his fierce charges against the teutons—for this is St George's day, the feast day of England's patron saint. Throughout the British dominions and in every other nook and corner of the world where sons of England have found a foothold the day will be enthusiastically observed.

Little is known of the life of St. George, except that he was martyred in Nicomedia in April, 303. He became extremely popular with the English crusaders, and was adopted as the tutelary saint of England during the reign of Edward III. It is interesting to note that St. George is also the patron saint of Russia and of Portugal, two of England's allies in the present war.

HEAD-ON COLLISION

Some excitement was created at the "diamond" corner Saturday evening when two automobiles, or two Fords, came together with a crash. One machine, which was coming down Second street at a lively gait, was driven by Glenn Fargo, of the West Side, while the other was being driven by a Mr. Swatsworth, of Curwensville. The latter machine was pretty badly damaged, the steering gear knocked out of whack and jammed up generally.

By George Martin

(By United Press)

Washington, April 23—What the Allies want from the United States more than anything else is food. This vitalfactor emphasizes the trappings of diplomatic courtesy at the reception tendered Foreign Secretary Arthur J. Balfour and the British Commission by President Wilson and other American officials.

While the day was given over to surface courtesies and diplomatic greetings the foreign experts of both America and England went into consideration of the vital questions—shipping, munitions, finance and military and naval affairs needed by the Allies since the United States has come in.

There is no "immediate concern regarding the sending of troops to Europe," it was officially stated.

Balfour confered with President Wilson and President Cunliffe of the Bank of England conferred with Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo, naval experts of both nations met with Secretary Daniels, military experts [illegible] with Secretary Baker, shipping [illegible] advisors with their corp of [illegible] experts, but stat[ed] they all [illegible] appear that the presence of the British representatives in this country was a plea for food for the allies. I wish to make it plain, said their spokesman, that we are not here to tell you what you must do. The Allies greatest problem and the one which will best help our cause is food which includes that of shipping. Please remember that Britain's food problem is not the French food problem, nor the Italian or Russian food problem, it is all one great question. At a recent allied conference the allies agreed to pool their food supplies.

No direct discussion regarding the food situation will take place until the French commission arrives The French commission will not come here out of mere courtesy but will take an active part in the conferences it was stated Also the official spokesman said, "allow me to make clear the status of Balfour. Balfour's word in every respect is absolute The experts are here merely to answer questions directly to them through Balfour. Every decision will be reached between Secretary Balfour and President Wilson. It is my belief that Balfour will not broach any question of international political policy. He is prepared to answer any questions however. He will speak for all the allies. The allies part in this situation is not to hamper or coerce the United States into any international relations. All we want to do is help."

The President received Balfour in the Blue Room of the White House where hundreds of great men in years past have conferred on subjects of great moment. The meeting between President Wilson and Secretary Balfour was marked with the greatest simplicity except for the splendor of the uniforms of the President's aids, the whole affair was informal. Secretary Baker and his staff greeted Lieut. Bridges, tall and handsome. He was dressed in his plain field service uniform and the American officers were loaded down with gold ornaments.

20 SUBS TAKEN

Washington, April 23.—A member of the British war commission said that 20 German submarines and their crews had been captured by the British on April 10, the day before the party sailed. "They weren't captured, either," said the Englishman, "they were looking for a destryoed base when we picked them up. They were on the verge of starvation and offered no resistance. England has captured a lot more than you people in America have any idea of."

CENSORING THE PRESS.

The Senate at the present time is greatly exercised over the measure to provide for a censorship over the newspapers of the country. It is probable that several of the members are even more disturbed than the circumstances would justify. Quite a few of them have been sharply criticized during the past weeks for their public acts and may harbor a feeling of "get even." The greater majority, however, seem anxious that perhaps a too strict censorship might be imposed and a measure passed that would encroach upon free speech. This is quite true. Fair and honest criticism should be welcomed at any time, and is, by most congressmen. Senator Thomas, of Colorado, summed the matter rightly when he said that "I would put no restrictions on the American press, that is not absolutely necessary to the salvation of the Republic. Once the rights of the press are invaded, the rights of the people will be. I would rather see no law at all. I would rather take my chances under existing laws, than to see a statute like this passed by the Congress."

The present laws are sufficient to prevent the press of the United States from publishing anything that would be detrimental to the welfare of the greater interests of the country, and they would be sufficient to hold any overzealous editor in check. Editors will respect any request made upon them by the government. This was amply illustrated on Saturday morning. The state department announced to the big news gathering agencies of the country Friday night that Sir Arthur Balfour and the English commissioners had arrived in the United States, but it as requested that no announcement of it be made until later. Not a paper carried this news on Saturday morning, and none published it until it was officially released on Saturday evening. The Progress along with others was in possession of this information.

About all that is necessary in the present instance is for Congress to issue a resolution warning editors against malicious and unwise statements, and put each editor and reporter on his honor to be careful in their public utterances with assurances of ample punishment in case they were indiscreet. Every newspaper man would scan the news and its value to the enemy or the United States carefully considered. He would err on the side of safety by cutting out the copy rather than take the chance, if any doubt existed. This mode of procedure with the large news gathering agencies would prevent the careless editor from going wrong, as he would not get the news for publication should he prove untrustworthy.

The press is one with the administration and anxious to play its part with honor and discretion.

CHINA BOY SAVVE GOD?—CONSIDERABLY

(By United Press)

Denver, Colo., April 23.—The life of a deputy city attorney in Denver is a hard, hard road to travel anyway. But the crowning ignominy has been heaped on Con. K O'Bryne—who is Irish as his name implies.

O'Bryne suspected that a Chinese witness being sworn in police court did not realize of the oath he was taking.

Sell Lung, known as the "mayor" of Denver's Chinatown, was the witness. But O'Bryne didn't know this.

"China boy savve God?" he queried as Lung took the oath.

"Mr. Attorney, if you mean do I understand the entity of our Creator, I will simply reply that on next Sunday night I shall address a body of my fellow countrymen upon the subject of Christ, and shall be pleased if you will attend," replied the Chinaman in perfect English.

WHAT IS THE MATTER WITH CLEARFIELD

Last year the town experienced a building boom. New buildings everywhere within the borough limits. In the East End. On the West Side. North Clearfield and in the Central part. More new buildings erected than in any one year for perhaps fifteen years. I do not know the number but am informed by a builder who keeps in touch with the growth of the town that there were about one hundred good, substantial brick homes built during the year 1916.

With all this improvement, extending to and taking in the Textile plant buildings why should the assessed valuation for borough tax purposes decline? Would it not be reasonable to expect a great increase? Also an increase in collections of taxes for borough purposes. The reverse is correct as the following figures will show: Duplicate for 1915, $3,021,429; duplicate for 1916, $3,017,245; and for 1917, $3,005,086. Crtainly this is a strange condition.

Who are at fault? The assessors or the county commissioners in allowing exonerations. From one property in the heart of the city an allowance of $20,000 from the assessor's valuation was permitted and on another $1,500. On still another an allowance of $1,000 was given. All located in localities where property is increasing in value.

The town is spreading, much building on the outskirts, causing heavy expenditures on the part of the borough treasury because these property owners want drainage, sewerage and sanitary conditions which are already provided for the more central parts. The Borough Council is a football; an object for every taxpayer to train a good swift kick on. This body has a limited amount of money to expend but many citizens who promote public enterprizes come before Council asking for appropriations to help out. Some of worth and others of a faddish nature as though borough resources unlimited. Many are refused because the borough money has to be used for actual necessities. This borough has a large increased debt. Nothing further along that line will be permitted unless something of a most extraordinary nature occurs. Taxes have become burdensome. An increase in millage, except for taking care of the last increase in debt, would not be tolerated without a howl of rage. And yet with our borough expanding, modern improvements wanted in the expanding section, what will occur with numbers of buildings being erected which should cause a greater valuation for taxable purposes? An increase of funds in the borough treasury but the total assessed valuation showing a reduction. It means the millage will have to be increased or else a better system of assessing value intrduced and fewer reductions from the assessor's assessments.

If it becomes necessary to increase the millage in order to increase the borough funds, don't blame the council but put the blame where it belongs. See that the assessors are capable and good judges of the worth of real estate and that they assess at fair and just values both as to the owner and the borough. Then say to the county commissioners—keep hands off! Taxpayers—think of this problem. Notwithstanding the great amount of building last season and increase of value of real estate within the borough the assessed valuation for taxable purposes has decreased.

MOTHER ONCE WAS AFRAID TO GO TO BED

Spasmodic Croup Often Kept Mrs. Shepard Awake All Night.

No one but a mother knows the terrors of croup. In the hope that other mothers will find the same relief she experienced, Mrs. Benj. Shepard, 27 Spruce St., Danville, Pa., writes—

"I have used your Vick's VapoRub Salve, and would not be without it in my house. I have tried it for spasmodic croup and it acted like a charm. My little girl breathed easier in about ten minutes after I rubbed her throat and chest with VapoRub, and she went to sleep and never woke until morning. Other times I used to have to sit up all night with her, afraid to go to bed. So I will gladly recommend it to any mothers for croup."

You just apply Vick's VapoRub Salve over throat and chest, covering with a warm flannel cloth. The body heat releases antiseptic vapors that are inhaled with each breath, loosening the phlegm. A real "Bodyguard in the home" against all cold troubles. Three sizes, 25c, and up. At all druggists.

WHY INDIVIDUALISM IS AS DEAD AS A SMELT

By George W. Perkins.

"Individualism" is as dead as a smelt. That is my contention.

In this country we have been living in an age of the utmost freedom to the individual. It has been the individualistic period.

In the early days, when instantaneous intercommunication did not exist, when education was meagre and science undeveloped, what the individual did was of comparatively small consequence, for his deeds did not reach very far and did not affect many people.

With intercommunication drawing the world together in one centralized community, the act of the individual can affect a large number of persons; therefore, that form of freedom which is simply another expression for license to do as one pleases can no longer exist.

Society is finding it necessary to take away much of what has hitherto been called "freedom of the individual." In my judgment this process is only in its infancy.

Until recent years little broad thinking was given to this problem and differences were settled on the basis of "might makes right." All this is rapidly changing and we are entering a period of new industrial relationships.

In my judgment we are just now entering a period of copartnership, where the tool user will be part tool owner and where capital and labor will share more equitably in the profits of the business in which they are jointly engaged.

This advance is inevitable because of our educational system, which teaches the workingman to think for himself.

It is inevitable because strikes and lockouts can never be settled satisfactorily or permanently by merely raising a man's wages.

No more increase in wages can ever satisfactorily solve this problem. It can be solved only on the basis of profit sharing.

By profit sharing I do not mean bonus giving.

Profit sharing can be done satisfactorily only when the business concern makes public its transactions, so that the laborer and the stockholder can know as much about the business as does the manager himself.

In the adjustment of difficulties between capital and labor I am confident that open books will accomplish much more than open shops.

About the only goal we have had has been the almighty dollar. The first question asked when a man dies is, "How much was he worth?" with ... to how much he did for his community or his country.

But what has it all amounted to?

On the whole, the individualistic age has not been a success, either for the individual or the community in which he has lived, or the nation.

We are, beyond question, entering on a period where the welfare of the community takes precedence over the interests of the individual and where the liberty of the individual will be more and more circumscribed for the benefit of the community as a whole.

Our only decoration—the almighty dollar—is receding into the background.

The man of exceptional ability, of more than ordinary talent, will hereafter look for his rewards, for his honors, not in one direction but in two: First and foremost in some public work accomplished and, secondarily, in wealth acquired.

One reason why I am strongly for universal military training is that it develops in the youth a sense of all around responsibility to his country, not only in time of war but in time of peace.

In recent years we have been hearing a great deal about government ownership of our railroads.

Government ownership of railroads may be as desirable in this country as it is in Germany, but we must first have public servants who will at least come somewhere near the standard of Germany's public servants in efficiency and honesty.

Centralization is the order of the day. The telegraph, the telephone, the automobile and the airship are the causes. They have wiped out not only old precedents and customs, but State and national lines as well.

A man living in Boston who wishes to talk to a man living in San Francisco simply rings a bell, puts a little instrument to his ear and proceeds to talk. There is hardly a miracle in the Bible more wonderful than this.

The doctrine of "State rights" is being rapidly demolished.

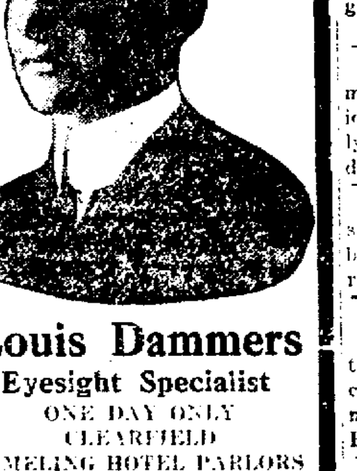

The State, viewed as an individual with the right to do as it pleases within itself, without regard for other States, can no longer be tolerated.

We must therefore take on a new nationalism.

The mighty changes taking place in Europe tell us with unmistakable voice that the reconstruction period is at hand. The man of the future must realize it. He must not look back to the setting but forward to the rising sun.

ANITA STEWART SAYS—

SUBSTITUTING BRAINS FOR DOLLARS

Ethel's veranda presented a most inviting appearance as I jumped out of my motor and ran up the stone steps. The day was unusually warm for such early spring and she had brought her reed furniture from the cellar, and Baby, her mother-in-law and she were enjoying the good fresh air and invigorating sunshine.

Baby was playing with some blocks, mother was half asleep in a lounging chair, and Ethel as usual was very busy. This time her fingers were plying a needle through a soft grey chiffon.

"Welcome, my dear!" she called as she saw me for the first time. "I was just hoping you would drop in. Somehow I had a feeling you would come, for know the sunshine's appeal to you is too strong to resist unless the studios claim your presence. Come, pull your chair close to mine so we won't disturb mother, and we'll chat."

"Keep right on with your work, busy bee," I said, "What it is you're making now?"

In answer Ethel drew a fashion book from the basket on the wing of her chair and displayed to my view a delightful frock.

"I'm changing it a bit, though," she declared. "Last week when I explored a little in the shops, I saw one of the most attractive summer dresses imaginable. But the price!! For the rest of the afternoon I tried to conceive some way of purchasing it, but my brain couldn't discover how to make my dollars prove sufficient. At last I decided to get the latest fashion book and see if there was anything similar within its pages. The style was too difficult to copy without a pattern. Well, there was nothing just like it. But by buying three different patterns, I have really duplicated the frock. Don't you think it will be effective with a collar in a mixture of dull rose and the grey itself?"

Indeed I did. Even in imagination I could just see how very lovely it was sure to be.

Every time I visit Ethel she shows me how brains may do the work of dollars. Of course many would not be able to do things so aptly, but neither could Ethel do it at first. Gradually her work has improved and now she it able to make things just as effectively as they do in the shops.

And in these days of impossible prices one finds the substitution of brains for dolars most advisable.

JITNEY DRIVER TRIED IN BOMB PLOT

(By United Press)

San Francisco, April 23.—Israel Weinberg, third of the group of alleged conspirators held responsible for the bomb explosion which killed eleven people in San Francisco preparedness parade last year, went on trial befor Superior Judge Dunne today.

Weinberg, a jitney driver, is claimed by the state to have driven Thomas J. Mooney, Warren K. Billings and other conspirators, to the corner of Steuart and Market streets, where the bomb was placed. Warren K. Billings and Thomas J. Mooney have been tried and convicted of murder, Billings under a life sentence and Mooney sentenced to death.

Weinberg, it appears, will claim he was not on Market street the afternoon of the explosion and had no connection with the plot, whatsoever.

STOMACH UPSET?

Get at the Real Cause—Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That's what thousands of stomach sufferers are doing now. Instead of taking tonics, or trying to patch up a poor digestion, they are attacking the real cause of the ailment—clogged liver and disordered bowels.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets arouse the liver in a soothing, healing way. When the liver and bowels are performing their natural functions, away goes indigestion and stomach troubles.

If you have a bad taste in your mouth, tongue coated, appetite poor, lazy, don't-care feeling, no ambition or energy, troubled with undigested foods, you should take Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You will know them by their olive color. They do the work without griping, cramps or pain.

Take one or two at bedtime for quick relief, so you can eat what you like. At 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

LITTLE LILLIAN ROMAINE FISHER CAN TALK AGAIN

This attractive little lady is the two year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. M. Fisher, 238 North St., Harrisburg, Pa. Last winter she had an attack of measles, together with a very severe cold. Just at that time Druggist S. J. Wilhelm presented Mr. Fisher with a jar of the Southern "outside" treatment—Vick's VapoRub Salve, which was just then being introduced in Harrisburg, and requested that he give this preparation a thorough trial. Mr. Fisher writes—

"I must say that our baby had such a cold on her chest and in her throat that she could hardly talk, and we could not get her to take anything internally. After we used Vick's VapoRub Salve on her breast and throat at night before going to bed she was entirely relieved."

No family should be without this preparation. It is externally applied, and so can be used freely—it is absorbed through and penetrates the skin, and, in addition, is inhaled as a vapor. It has a hundred uses for the many minor ailments for which every mother is the doctor. Three sizes, 25c, 50c or $1.00.

AMERICA' GREATEST LAWYER DEAD AT 76

JOHN G. JOHNSON

John G. Johnson of Philadelphia, little known to the public but recognized for more than a quarter of a century by lawyers as the greatest among them, is dead at seventy-six years of age. He was offered and declined what some men have striven a lifetime to obtain—an appointment to the Supreme Court of the United States. Both Presidents Garfield and Cleveland offered to nominate him. President McKinley asked him to become attorney general of the United States, but he refused that place, too. He had a great knowledge of art as well as law, and was considered by many persons to be really a great expert on painting.

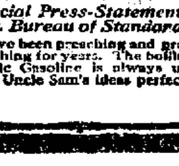

Pep

A DROP of Atlantic Gasoline—what majesty, what superb virility! Torn to shreds in the cylinder-head and lashed into a stream of might in instant flight from crank-shaft to rear wheels!

Pep. Power. Tremendous power—steady, unfaltering. Truly a super-gasoline that makes any motor a better motor, that makes any motorist a happier motorist.

Atlantic Gas is so downright spunky. Up-hills are turned into down-grades. Level stretches become as the free, unobstructed air to the whirring aeroplane. Increased mileage and decreased upkeep are a matter of course—and fact.

Whatever you drive—Ford or Fiat, Cole or Cadillac, Roamer or Rolls-Royce, Atlantic Gasoline will give it new impetus, new vigor. For, Atlantic gas will and does Put Pep in Your Motor.

"You've Got the Goods, Atlantic"

"Today, the specific gravity test is practically worthless as a check on the suitability of a gasoline, for example, for a given motor equipment. * * * It seems most probable that the definition of gasoline will have to be based on the percentage that distils over between specified temperatures, when the distillation is carried out under specified conditions. * * *

"The gasoline must not vaporize too freely for two reasons: One, that it would not be safe, and secondly, its loss in storage by evaporation would be too great. Hence, the specification may have to contain limitations of the percentage distilling over below a certain temperature, coupled perhaps with a proviso that certain percentages shall distil over below other fixed temperatures, in order that requisite amounts of low-boiling constituents shall be present to insure easy starting of an engine.

"Likewise the specification must contain a proviso that all must distil over below a certain maximum temperature, in order to exclude from the gasoline the heavier petroleum distillates, such as kerosene."

Official Press-Statement by U. S. Govt. Bureau of Standards.

We've been preaching and practicing the same thing for years. The boiling-point of Atlantic Gasoline is always uniform. It meets Uncle Sam's ideas perfectly.

LYTLE BROS.

MARKET ST. CLEARFIELD, PA.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

TOM THUMB WENT A JOURNEY

They Walked Off With Him.

[Adapted from Grimm's Fairy Tales]

WHEN daddy had taken the big armchair the children cuddled down beside him for this story. "Once a little boy, no bigger than my thumb, drove his father's horse to the woods. He made the trip in the horse's ear, you know.

"'Take me down, father!' he shouted, when he got there.

"Now, two strangers had followed along with Tom. They were much surprised, you may believe, when they saw a man step out of the woods, take hold of the horse's bridle with one hand and with the other lift a tiny boy out of the horse's ear.

"The father put Tom down on a straw, and there he sat as comfortable and merry as you please after his trip.

"All this time the two strangers were looking on and hardly knew what to think for their wonder. At last one whispered to the other: 'That little urchin would make our fortune if we took him about from town to town and used him as a show. We must buy him!'

"So up to the woodman they went and asked him what he would take for his tiny son. 'He would be better off with us than with you,' they told the father.

"Said Tom's father: 'We love our tiny boy very dearly and no amount of money would tempt us to sell him to you. My own flesh and blood is dearer to me than all the gold and silver in the world.'

"But all the time Tom Thumb was listening to the bargain. So now he crept up his father's coat till he stood on his father's shoulders and, whispering in his ear, said: 'Take the money, father, and let them have me. I will soon be back to you!'

"So then the woodman told the strangers he would sell his son for a large amount of gold, which they paid.

"'Where would you like to sit?' one asked Tom, taking possession of him.

"'Oh, put me on the rim of your hat,' answered Tom Thumb. 'That will make a nice gallery for me. I can promenade about there and see the country as you walk along.'

"So the stranger put Tom on his hat. And after he had bade his father goodby they walked off with him. On they journeyed till night began to fall.

"'Let me down, I'm tired,' said the little man to the stranger who carried him. The man took off his hat and put Tom down on a clod of earth in a plowed field by the side of the road," daddy finished.

ESSAYS ON HUMANE EDUCATION

It has been with great pleasure that I have addressed the sixth grade schools of Clearfield on the subject of Humane Education within the past months I found the principles and teachers all most willing to cooperate and the pupils eager to take up the line of work suggested.

After announcing the offer of a prize by the Woman's Club for the best essay written on the subject of "the Needs of Dumb Animals," every pupil volunteered to write on the subject. More than two thousand pages of literature for these pupils has been donated by the state "Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals."

The time of awarding the prize will be announced later.

S. CANFIELD WILSON,
Chairman Humane Education.

ON THE SCREEN

Alice Joyce and Harry Morey in "THE COURAGE OF SILENCE"

Special at the Globe Theatre Tomorrow

Bitter indeed were the dregs of her empty marriage into which she was forced for political reasons. But her fiery spirit rebelled and she allowed herself to love an American.

He, weakly flattering his vanity, accepts her regards until she discovers his own family ties.

What was she to do? She had abandoned her brutal husband and now refused to go with the American. She had one alternative. She became a nurse.

He dared not return to face his family. He took a trip abroad to forget. But when his child fell ill, Mercedes coming as a nurse, makes the greatest sacrifice a woman may.

Secretly loving him, she is instrumenal in having him return home, rescues his child and brings a realization to him of the greatest of all gifts. Then her heart an empty shell, courageously she returns silent to the convent retreat.

MOVIES BY THE TON FOR SOUTH AMERICA

Washington, April 23—More than 200,000 pounds of movie film, worth about $350,000 have been imported into Argentine in five years, the American consul at Buenos Aires reports. The city has 130 movie houses where Chaplin and Pickford strut and coo.

CHICAGO MEAT KING IS IN FAVOR OF MEATLESS DAYS

J. OGDEN ARMOUR

So serious does J. Ogden Armour, the great packer, of Chicago, think the food situation in the United States since we have entered the war, that he had this to say on the subject: "As a measure of conservation, for example, I should favor the institution, of meatless days, one or two of them a week, such as they now have in Europe. This is a strange doctrine for a meat packer to preach, but I believe that either by law or voluntarily people will be obliged to stop eating so much meat during the summer months, esperially if they expect to have a sufficient supply next fall and winter."

SPECIAL MEETING OF THE WOMAN'S CLUB

The Woman's Club will hold a meeting Tuesday afternoon at three o'clock at their rooms on Locust street. The committee in charge of the program for the afternoon has spent a great deal of time in arranging attractive papers on "Modern Dramatist." "Short Stories, good and bad" and "Current Magaines." Any one who has heard the previous numbers of the literary program can appreciate how pleasing this will be. It is desirous that there will be a good attendance at this meeting as matters of importance to all members will be discussed in a short business meeting. A 21-2t

Lloyd Sheffler and Lloyd Mohney, of DuBois were Clearfield visitors Sunday.

SECOND SPANELL TRIAL

Coleman Texas, April 23 The second trial of Harry J Spannell, former hotel keeper in the town of Alpine, who is alleged to have shot and killed his wife and Lieutenant Col Malcolm C Butler U S A last July, is scheduled to begin here this week, the case having been brought to Coleman on change of venue. The tragedy occurred while Spanell and his alleged victims were riding in an automobile near the town of Alpine, where Lieut Col Butler was stationed at the time of the Mexican border trouble. Jealousy is said to have furnished the motive for the shooting. At San Antonio last February Spanell was tried for the murder of his wife and acquitted. He is now to be tried under an indictment charging him with the murder of Lieut Col Butler.
